The Contours Commitment

Inspire

We've been creating tailor-made tours to Latin America for more than 40 years. Every one of our expert consultants has travelled widely throughout the region and has extensive experience in designing unique and seamless holidays that offer travellers the very best of this extraordinary continent.

Our brochure is full of creative ideas to inspire your next Latin American adventure. Allow us to introduce you to Latin America's most iconic destinations, as well as some of our favourites that are often overlooked. We'll show you how to combine the best of this stunning region to create a truly unique and memorable trip.

Enhance

Throughout our brochure you'll find a number of ways to enhance your travel experience, with inspired accommodation options, unusual touring ideas and excursions designed for special interests. Looking for more active options for day trips? Ask us about hiking Rio de Janeiro's Mount Corcovado to reach Christ the Redeemer, or cycling the shaded streets of Palermo in Buenos Aires. Foodies should look no further than our excellent Taco and Tamale tours in Mexico City or a traditional Andean cooking class in Cuzco. From history to cuisine, archaeology to opera, cycling tours to horseback riding and more, we want to share the full potential of each wonderful destination with you.

Value

We aim to provide the best value for money, regardless of whether you're on a budget or looking to splurge. We've got our fingers on the pulse for great value offers and know the best places to splash out for a truly memorable experience.

Why are there no prices in our brochure? Because things change fast in Latin America! New routes develop daily, great hotels get better and touring options become more diverse every week. We want to ensure you're getting the best advice and the most competitive price at the moment you make the enquiry. Contact your travel agent for a tailor-made holiday and quote.

Confidence

A dedicated Contours Travel specialist will look after you from your first phone call. We'll create a personalised itinerary that reflects your interests, time and budget, and continue to refine your holiday until you are 100% satisfied.

With more than 40 years of travelling in and working with Latin America, we pass our in-depth knowledge and first-hand experience on to you. Our thorough pre-departure information will ensure you get the most out of your journey. Our consultants travel frequently to stay up to date with exciting new hotels, fantastic touring options and the best suggestions for local food, shopping and sightseeing.

During your time in Latin America you can be confident that our trusted in-country partners are there to look after you. They will reconfirm your onward flights, make adjustments if delays occur, and provide you with 24/7 contact details in case of emergencies, allowing you to relax and enjoy the trip of a lifetime.

One of the good points of booking through Contours Travel was dealing with just one person. It gives a personal touch to all the travel arrangements to feel you are planning and knowing our every move using your experience in the region. From the start, offering ideas to extend the trip from simply Cuba, to include Mexico and Panama, to the finish, seamlessly organising to change an impossibly noisy hotel to a quiet one. Thanks for your care and for your attention to detail on our itinerary, no complaints from us. We'll certainly recommend you to friends!

How We Travel

The Contours Experience

Amazon Rainforest, Peru

Journey

Because of the enormous size of Latin America, you'll most likely require at least one or two regional flights after arriving via one of the region's gateways. Our expert consultants will plan your itinerary to reduce the amount of time spent in airports and keep your costs down by using one of our wholesale airpasses.

For travel between cities and towns you can choose from private transportation with a driver and guide; luxury coaches with flat-bed seats for longer journeys; or, in some regions, self-drive options. Transfers to and from hotels are generally booked as private with either a driver and/or guide. Shared transfers may occasionally be offered to keep costs down.

Train lovers should know that Latin America has some of the world's most iconic train journeys: the brand new luxury sleeper Belmond Andean Explorer, travelling between Cuzco and Arequipa in Peru; the Tren Crucero overland trip in Ecuador, Mexico's Copper Canyon and Argentina's famous End of the World Train in Ushuaia.

Stay

There's been a revolution in accommodation standards since we first started sending travellers to Latin America. Some of the world's finest luxury hotels are dotted throughout South and Central America, combining local character and history with superb service and comfort.

Contours Travel prefers smaller boutique properties that make use of local materials and reflect the local culture, from exquisite five-star Small Luxury Hotels of the World to rustic three-star, family-run posadas. In many cases, we use a mix of moderate and deluxe accommodation options designed to give you the best value, with a few special treats along the way. Look for our recommended Stays of Distinction throughout the brochure and on our website – these properties are remarkable destinations in their own right.

See

All our itineraries are tailor-made so we can offer touring options specific to your personal interests, fitness levels and budget. Tours can usually be booked as private or shared services and are always conducted with bilingual guides. If you can't find anything that caters to your special interest inside this brochure, please contact Contours Travel and we'll put together the perfect tour options for you.

Connect

The destination specialists at Contours Travel agree that the people of Latin America are what keeps us coming back – Latinos are some of the world's friendliest people and the pride they share in their history and culture is striking. Try to learn a few words of the local language before you go – you'll be amazed by how encouraging people will be when they hear you making an effort. Rarely a day passes without a celebration of some sort where you can witness strong cultural traditions and family ties. Locals love to share their culture and will often invite you for a drink or a dance. It's these interactions that our clients frequently cite as the highlight of their holidays. We understand that today's traveller is looking for authentic experiences – let Contours Travel introduce you to the warm and wonderful people that make up this incredible region.

There wasn't a single moment when we felt anything less than completely comfortable and confident. Our guides were pleasant, friendly, knowledgeable and flexible, and great ambassadors for their countries. Our accommodation was very comfortable also, with the hotel staff going out of their way to assist whenever it was requested. All in all just completely fabulous in every way!

Community Projects

CONTOURS TRAVEL
community projects

A private weaving demonstration by members of a local co-operative in Chinchero in the intimacy of their own home.

Agua Pura Project delivering and installing water filters in schools and communities around the Sacred Valley.

Contours Travel supports a number of initiatives throughout Latin America. Whether through direct loans, importing artisanal products or supporting local development organisations, we are increasing opportunities for the people of this wonderful continent. Our exclusive partnership with Agua Pura is a fantastic way for you to become involved, however there are many other ways in which you can contribute.

If you're visiting the villages in Peru's Sacred Valley, we encourage you to prepare a small hygiene kit to give away. This item is easy to carry in your luggage and provides much-needed supplies to the communities you visit. If you would like to contribute, we can let you know who to hand the kit to once you get there.

Some of the items these communities need include aspirin, band-aids, gauze, antibacterial ointments, pain killers, soap, anti-diarrhoea medication, latex gloves, toothpaste, toothbrushes, feminine hygiene products, shampoo and tissues.

The communities also need school supplies such as paper, pens, crayons, coloured pencils, notebooks, erasers, rulers and pencil sharpeners; children's clothing including sandals/flip-flops, underwear, t-shirts and clothing for cold weather; and deflated soccer balls.

A Peruvian charity supporting various communities in the high Andes around the Sacred Valley of Peru. Their mission is to provide assistance in nutrition, health, education and conservation, promoting long-term solutions.

Peru's Challenge welcomes you to spend time working and learning alongside local communities in the Cuzco area.

Its first focus is to transform schools into a safe, happy learning environment for the children in each community.

A not-for-profit branch of our Peruvian partner Condor Travel. This pilot project creates opportunities for local people: men have been trained as porters for the Inca Trail, literacy and textile classes have been offered to women and children are given education and health care. You are invited to help with a range of activities.

The donation of the water filters to the Pumamarca community was so very special & we were very humbled to have done such a small thing that meant so much to them.

- Mark & Jenny

We just had the best morning with Peru's Challenge. It was absolutely amazing to see everything they are doing for the communities & to see how much difference the water filters that Contours Travel are sending over are making. I was very lucky to have experienced it & the group absolutely loved it. Everyone agrees this has been the best day so far!

- Emma

Community Projects

"Thank you for supporting us": Misminay community members express their thanks.

A Paru Paru student with a newly installed Sawyer Point ZeroTWO™ filter.

Exclusive to Contours Travel is the one-of-a-kind Agua Pura Community Project. This inspiring experience allows you to present and assemble the 'Sawyer Two' water filter in a remote community in the Andes, bringing improved health and wellbeing to families in need while getting to know the people of the village and sharing in their everyday activities.

The Sawyer Point ZeroTWO™ water filter is a portable purification device that mechanically removes bacteria including E. coli, cholera and typhoid. This low-maintenance device is capable of filtering more than 1000 litres per day!

Agua Pura is the result of Contours Travel teaming up with the Rotary Club of North Melbourne and the Rotary Club of Cuzco to provide safe drinking water to communities in very remote areas in and around the Sacred Valley and Cuzco.

'We believe clean water should not be a luxury for the few, but a right for all people.'

Visiting Pumamarca was a very important & inspiring part of the trip... The group was very pleased to present the school with the water filters which will have such a positive impact on the health of the community & not just to simply visit it. We would definitely recommend this experience to fellow travellers.

- Jenny & Richard

It was truly an uplifting & positive experience to see the school working so well & the children so happy... We later participated in water filters preparation with the filters we had brought over from Australia. The Agua Pura experience gave us a glimpse of the people's & children's daily life. Most definitely... it was the highlight of our trip.

From the ultra-modern fusion cuisine of Lima to the cobblestone streets of Cuzco, Peru is a country both steeped in tradition and revelling in modernity. The remains of Peru's past are everywhere – from the ancient northern kingdoms of Chan Chan, Sipan and Kuelap to the southern civilisations of the Inca, Nazca and Sillustani – and yet the country is also a model of modernity and development.

Visit the culinary capital Lima and indulge in some of Peru's finest cuisine. Take a short trip down the coast through remarkable desert landscape to see the mysterious Nazca Lines, visit Peru's best pisco producers in Ica and enjoy the teeming wildlife of the Ballestas Islands before heading back to the capital for a short onward flight to Cuzco: gateway to the Sacred Valley of the Incas.

The Sacred Valley was the breadbasket of the Inca Empire and contains some of Peru's most beautiful mountain scenery, fascinating cultural traditions and a wealth of Inca ruins. Visit the famous fortress of Ollantaytambo, bike or hike across ancient terraced fields and explore colourful regional markets. At just 2,800m above sea level, this is a great place to acclimatise before heading to the breathless heights of the Altiplano.

Machu Picchu remains Peru's most alluring destination; a magical mountain citadel shrouded in mystery and romance. Whether you travel by train along the Urubamba Valley or hike the ancient Inca trails in through the Sun Gate, your first glimpse of these iconic ruins is unforgettable.

Back in Cuzco your exploration of the Inca civilisation continues at every turn, through the stone masonry that underpins almost every building in the historic centre, to the massive complex of Sacsayhuaman on the city's northern edge. The city is also home to some of the continent's finest boutique hotels and excellent cuisine. We strongly recommend taking a few days to relax and soak up the history, culture and tradition of this fascinating city.

A train or coach ride across the Altiplano will bring you to the shores of Lake Titicaca, the highest navigable lake in the world at 3820m above sea level. Visit the famous Uros floating islands, or stay overnight with a homestay on Amantani or Taquile islands. The private island of Suasi provides an intimate experience with just 23 rooms.

Rivalling Cuzco as Peru's loveliest colonial city, Arequipa is surrounded by snow-capped volcanoes and the world's deepest canyons and home is to the Andean condor. A city within a city, the extensive Santa Catalina Convent is a photographer's dream, with vibrantly hued courtyards, fountains and corridors. Visit the Colca Canyon, twice the depth of the Grand Canyon, en route from Lake Titicaca, or as a side trip from Arequipa.

Visit the Amazon Basin and stay in one of Peru's many wonderful jungle lodges. Whether you arrive by riverboat or plane, the wonders of the rainforest are easily accessed from Peru's main gateways of Iquitos and Puerto Maldonado. See pages 22 and 23 for our selection of luxury cruises and rustic lodges.

Often overlooked in favour of the Inca are the vast citadels, mysterious temples and the fine craftsmanship of the Moche and Chachapoya civilisations. Peru's northern cities of Chiclayo, Trujillo and Chachapoyas are a must for history buffs, with many ancient cities predating the Inca by hundreds of years.

From historical sights to stunning waterfalls, world-class restaurants to world-famous treks and fascinating culture and traditions, Peru really does have something for everyone.

Ecuador

As one of the smallest countries in South America, part of Ecuador's charm is its compact size. Ecuador's four regions – the Andes, Amazon, Pacific Coast and Galapagos Islands – encompass an incredible variety of flora, fauna and experiences. The Amazon Basin is a day's drive from the Andean peaks that form the Avenue of the Volcanoes and the Pacific Coastal plains are a hop, skip and jump from the Indian markets of the highlands.

Quito is one of South America's most charming capitals, and the first city to be named a UNESCO World Heritage site. Wander the cobblestone streets discovering incredible architectural beauty and a rich history. The city has some truly memorable accommodation options, including the superb Casa Gangotena – a restored historic mansion and winner of the 'Best Hotel in South America' accolade.

Travel north of Quito to reach the famous market town of Otavalo, where you can extend your stay in this beautiful valley in one of the region's traditional haciendas. An overland trip from Quito to Guayaquil through the beautiful rural landscape framed by some of the world's highest volcanoes is highly recommended. Explore colourful highland markets, visit ancient Inca ruins and appreciate the country's diversity as you travel from high in the Andes through lush cloud forest, finishing in the tropical lowlands. Travelling this route by train adds a touch of romance and luxury to an already-inspiring journey (see page 29).

The Amazon Basin is a mere 30-minute flight from Quito across the Andes and into the steamy tropics. Travel down the Napo River, admiring the rich green foliage that lines the banks before arriving at your remote jungle lodge, or opt for an Amazon River cruise and explore deep inside Yasuni National Park.

The Galapagos Islands are, of course, a highlight. Declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1978, the volcanic archipelago of 13 main islands is on the equator, about 1,000km west of Ecuador. Two main airports, Baltra and San Cristobal, service the islands. Once you arrive you can choose from stunning luxury lodges, safari-style camps or laid-back island-hopping itineraries (more details on pages 32 and 33), as well as a diverse range of cruises to suit every budget (from 3 to 14 nights – see pages 34 and 35).

The islands can be visited all year round. December to June is warm and humid, while July to November is cooler with fresher winds. Cruise itineraries are designed to include the wildlife 'highlights' so no matter which option you go for, you'll be sure to see many of the islands' most iconic species. If there is a specific wildlife event you wish to see, or a particular species that interests you, please contact your travel consultant and we'll find the right itinerary for you.

Patagonia

One of the most evocative places on earth, Patagonia is a region spanning Chile and Argentina, and contains some of the most dramatic peaks, pristine wilderness and impressive glaciers in the world. This immense region is also home to some of the most iconic wildlife of the Americas. The Andean condor, guanaco, rhea, viscacha, puma and Chilean flamingo are all found at the southern end of the continent.

Patagonia encompasses some one million square kilometres and comprises the southern section of the Andes mountains as well as deserts, steppes and grasslands. With a population density of just under two people per square kilometre, it's easy to lose yourself in the majesty of this vast wilderness.

In the northern part of Patagonia, also known as the Andean Lakes, you'll find a serene landscape of snow-capped mountains, azure lakes and Swiss-style chalet architecture. The Andean Lakes Crossing takes you across a series of lakes edged by volcanoes and ancient forests. The pretty villages of Bariloche and Puerto Varas are both excellent bases for more extensive sightseeing in the region. We have some fantastic self-drive itineraries, which allow you to get off the beaten track and explore some of the lesser-known national parks at your own pace. With a huge number of first-class lodges and estancias to choose from on both sides of the border, the Lakes District offers both luxury and adventure.

The Carretera Austral is the name given to Chile's Route 7. Stretching some 1,200km from Puerto Montt to Villa O'Higgins, this is one of South America's most scenic drives. Highlights include the iconic Marble Caves on Lake General Carrera; the plunging gorges, lush forests and snow-streaked mountain peaks of the Futuleufu Valley; and the rugged scenery of Queulat National Park. From four day guided packages to two-week self-drive itineraries, there is something for everyone in this spectacular region.

Further south in Chile is the magnificent Torres del Paine National Park. This is truly a trekker's paradise, but with the constantly changing light and the dramatic Torres soaring above, the park is equally rewarding for photographers and nature lovers. On the other side of the border you'll find the granite peaks of Mt Fitz Roy in El Chalten – the trekking capital of Argentina; and El Calafate, home to the spectacular Perito Moreno Glacier.

The world's southernmost city, Ushuaia, is found at the tip of the windswept archipelago of Tierra del Fuego, surrounded by the Martial Mountains. This is the gateway to Antarctica – just 1,000km across the Drake Passage (see pages 54 and 55). Shorter cruises sail through the famous Beagle Channel and navigate the Chilean fjords to reach Punta Arenas, Chile (see pages 50 and 51). Don't miss the world's southernmost rail journey – The End of the World Train – before you depart!

Antarctica

by Ted Dziadkiewicz, Contours Travel founder

Antarctica

Antarctica is the last wilderness, an untamed and uninhabited continent that promises to dazzle even the most world-weary traveller with its stunning glacial landscapes, unique and prolific wildlife, and the feeling that comes from experiencing nature at its most extreme. Stepping onto the Antarctic Peninsula for the first time is an incredible experience and one that we recommend for everyone.

Most classic Antarctic Peninsula voyages start and end in Ushuaia, Argentina, although other options involve either one-way or roundtrip flights to King George Island from Punta Arenas, cutting out the infamous crossing of the Drake Passage. For those who set out from Tierra del Fuego, the Drake Passage crossing is punctuated with sightings of albatross, sea petrels and cormorants. Once you hit the calm waters of the Antarctic Peninsula the fun begins with up to two shore excursions per day (weather permitting). Zodiacs, or rubber boats, on board each ship make it possible to access the shores and walk upon the spectacular Antarctic continent. More adventurous passengers may like to try sea kayaking, mountaineering or cross-country skiing. And for the truly daring – an Antarctic plunge!

Early-season voyagers (November and early December) will experience Antarctica at its most pristine. Icebergs and ice formations are unweathered and at their sharpest and most dramatic, and the snow is a pure and dazzling white as the continent awakens from its winter slumber. Penguins are at their most active during November, with many species mating and nesting. Adventurous travellers choose early-season voyages because the sheer quantity of ice and snow allows skiing and snowshoeing – impossible on mid- and late-season voyages.

Peak season (mid-December to mid-February) offers wildlife viewing at its best with long daylight hours, incredible, drawn-out sunsets and, often, calmer seas. January is the time to see fluffy, grey penguin chicks hatching and experience them at their cutest! You may also get the chance to see playful fur seal pups frolic beside your Zodiac during these warmer summer months. Voyages during this peak period tend to sell out far in advance so it's important to plan ahead to secure your preferred ship and cabin type.

Late season (February and March) is the best time to see whales – orcas, humpback and sperm whales are abundant during this time. You may also still catch the odd penguin chick and experience the incredible noise and confusion of the rookeries at their busiest.

Wildlife lovers should be sure to include South Georgia on their itinerary. Known of the 'Serengeti of the Southern Ocean' the island has some of the greatest concentrations of wildlife on earth, including millions of fur seals, sea birds and southern elephant seals. Nothing can prepare you for witnessing almost half a million king penguins on Salisbury Plain!

Antarctic expeditions range from 7-day fly in/fly out trips to full-on 21-day expeditions to the Falklands, South Georgia and Antarctic Peninsula. If you can't find what you're looking for here, contact us for more options.

From the world's largest flood plains to the Amazon rainforest, white sandy beaches to teeming metropolises, and rugged mountainous landscapes to baroque colonial architecture, Brazil is a country of astonishing geographic diversity. Boasting an incredible seventeen UNESCO World Heritage-listed sites, Brazil's natural and man-made wonders draw visitors from all over the world. The Brazilian people are just as alluring, exuberant, joyous and hospitable. After all, this is a nation renowned for throwing the world's biggest street party! Indigenous, European and African influences collide to give Brazil a unique cultural identity, expressed throughout the country in food, dance, music, religion and rituals.

Brazil's colonial heritage is reflected in the streets of picturesque towns dotted around the country. Visit Ouro Preto and glimpse the riches generated by Brazil's gold rush. From Rio de Janeiro, take a trip south along the coast and spend a few days wandering the cobblestone streets of Paraty. In the country's north, Salvador de Bahia and Olinda are living monuments to Brazil's Portuguese legacy.

For wildlife enthusiasts, few experiences can beat a trip to the world's largest wetland region, the Pantanal. Sprawling over a vast area of Brazil, Paraguay and Bolivia, the Pantanal contains up to twelve distinct ecosystems and changes dramatically throughout the year as the seasons shift. See the bright blue hyacinth macaw, giant anteater, toco toucan, armadillo, coati and perhaps the elusive puma or jaguar that roam the region. June to October is the best time to spot mammals as the waters recede for the dry season. From November to May the region becomes a birdwatcher's paradise.

The mighty Amazon River reaches the Atlantic Ocean after travelling thousands of kilometres through Brazil. Fly to Manaus, the capital of Amazonas, to join an Amazon cruise or head out to stay at one of the many lodges in the region. See the famous Meeting of the Waters where the Rio Negro and Rio Solimões converge. The Brazilian Amazon is at its wettest between February and April, and its hottest and driest from September to November – the mighty Amazon River rises and falls by an astonishing 12 to 15 metres between these two seasons.

With more than 7,000km of coastline, it's no wonder that life in Brazil tends to revolve around the beach. Vendors walk the busy city beaches of Rio de Janeiro, Recife and Salvador from dawn until dusk, selling cold drinks, snacks – even the famous Brazilian bikini. In laid-back Fernando de Noronha, you'll often have the beach all to yourself, not to mention some of the world's best scuba diving and snorkelling opportunities! From the relaxed charm of Jericoacoara to the ultra-chic beach resort of Buzios, Brazil's beaches have something for everyone.

Mexico is a land of extremes. From rainforests to vast deserts, tropical beaches to snow-covered volcanoes this diversity, combined with the multitude of cultures, archaeological masterpieces, quaint villages and a rich history, makes Mexico the perfect destination for today's traveller. The Maya aren't the only indigenous people of Mexico – the Olmec, Zapotec, Toltec and Aztec civilisations have all left their imprints on the modern face of this fascinating country with some 53 language groups still existing throughout the country.

Amazing archaeological sites scattered around the country are Mexico's most fascinating treasures. Less than 50km from Mexico City, Teotihuacan dates back more than 2000 years and was once the most powerful city of the New World. Palenque's temples rise mysteriously out of the jungle in the country's south. The Yucatan Peninsula has a great concentration of famous and lesser-known sites including Chichen Itza, Tulum, Calakmul and Uxmal. Consider renting a car to explore this fascinating and compact part of Mexico (see page 74).

With beautifully preserved colonial buildings, rich Spanish art and architecture and world-class museums, Mexico's colonial cities are a must on any itinerary. To the north and west of Mexico City you can explore the historic cities that make up the Colonial Heritage trail – San Miguel Allende, Zacatecas and Guanajuato are standouts. To the south-east of the capital, beautiful Puebla and the food capital of Oaxaca are not to be missed, while San Cristobal de las Casas in Chiapas is always a favourite.

Mexico is also home to an enormous wealth of natural beauty. The Copper Canyon is four times larger than the Grand Canyon and an awe-inspiring region. The Chihuahua al Pacifico Railroad carries passengers from sea level to an altitude of more than 2,400m, passing through 86 tunnels and gliding over 39 major bridges. Constantly changing scenery includes coastal plains, sub-tropical forests, wild rivers, towering waterfalls and snow-capped mountain peaks. From the maze of gorges that make up the Copper Canyon to the spectacular whale watching region around the Sea of Cortez, lush tropical rainforest and the aquamarine waters of the Caribbean coast, Mexico's incredible diversity ensures there's something to see all year round.

Mexican cuisine deserves a special mention – tacos, tamales and tortillas are just the beginning. Mexico has an incredible range of fresh produce and unique regional dishes, many of which have their origins in Aztec or Maya recipes and cooking techniques. Learn the secrets of creating the perfect mole poblano and discover the history of cacao during our fabulous culinary tour (page 71).

Oaxaca is the best place for tourists to experience the comparsas that take place all over the city. Comparsas are parades where local people dress up in traditional outfits and go from house to house dancing with brass bands and fireworks, celebrating the lives of the dead. HACIENDA SAN JOSE

Located in the northern Yucatan Peninsula, this historical plantation house is close to the Chichen Itza archaeological site and around 45 minutes from Merida airport. Its 15 rooms and suites, spread around a colonial patio, feature 18-foot ceilings with exposed beams and rafters; 10-foot wooden double doors; beautiful wooden beds, dark; tropical hardwood cabinets; and cool tiled floors. For the ultimate romantic getaway, opt for a private Maya Villa, complete with private garden and plunge pool.

HACIENDA TEMOZON

Formerly the most productive agave estate on the Yucatan Peninsula, Hacienda Temozon is now the peninsula's most luxurious hacienda hotel. Its 28 guest rooms and suites are furnished in the colonial style, evoking the region's history. The superb outdoor pool is a highlight, surrounded by lush tropical gardens and with stone columns rising regally from the waters. The hacienda is located about a 35 minutes drive from Merida airport and is the perfect base for exploring Loltun Caves and Uxmal Maya ruins.

HACIENDA SANTA ROSA

Less than an hour's drive from Merida airport and in the heart of the Maya archaeological zone, Hacienda Santa Rosa is surrounded by natural beauties such as the Calcehtok and Oxkintok Caves, and cultural sites including the ruins of Uxmal and the town of Becal. Cuba

Trinidad

Cuba is an extraordinary, enigmatic country and strikingly different from its Caribbean neighbours. It is an island steeped in the history of Spanish colonialism and post-war revolution. Reminders of Fidel Castro's communist revolution are everywhere – from the museum paying homage to the revolutionaries in Havana to the party slogans painted on city walls, Cuba's unique political system is an attraction in itself.

UNESCO World Heritage-listed Old Havana is the Caribbean's largest and most vibrant city. The crumbling facades of once-grand colonial mansions line the cobblestone streets. Classic Chevies, Buicks and Cadillacs jostle for position along the Malecon. Sip Havana Club rum and listen to the sounds of salsa, mambo and samba or head to the Conde de Villanueva for a Cuban cigar as you absorb the sights and sounds of this fascinating fusion of African and Spanish cultures.

Around two hours south-west of Havana and the heart of Cuba's agricultural sector, the Viñales Valley offers a stunning landscape of rust-red earth, rolling green farmland and dramatic limestone outcrops that conceal underground caves and river systems. Hiking or cycling through this unique landscape is a highlight of many trips to Cuba. Visit local tobacco farmers and see how Cuba's most renowned export is grown, harvested and rolled into the famous habanero cigar.

Three hours south-east of Havana, the city of Cienfuegos boasts a beautifully restored colonnaded central plaza and a collection of eclectic and ornate 20th century palaces. Dubbed the 'Pearl of the South' for its spectacular natural bay, the city is also one of Cuba's most prosperous, with a thriving shipyard and shrimp industry. Don't miss a visit to the Teatro Tomas for some great live music in a grand setting.

Perfectly preserved Trinidad was built with the wealth of the 19th century sugar boom, and little seems to have changed since its heyday in 1850. Horses and carts still travel the cobblestone streets and groups of guajiros (Cuban cowboys) while away the heat of the day playing checkers or chess in shaded plazas. Nearby Ancon Beach provides welcome respite from the heat with fine white sand, aquamarine waters and vendors ready to quench your thirst with freshly picked coconuts.

Further east, discover the charms of Cuba without the crowds in the less-visited central towns of Camaguey, Bayamo and Holguin. Santiago de Cuba is on the east coast between the Sierra Maestra Mountain range and the Caribbean Sea. Hot and sultry, the island's cultural capital has fantastic live music and a thriving arts and literature scene. Five hours away is the tiny fishing village of Baracoa, with a stunning natural setting and some of Cuba's best cuisine.

Passengers travelling to Cuba should be aware that the country is experiencing an enormous surge in demand and is struggling to cope with the dramatic increase in visitors. It is becoming difficult to confirm hotel accommodation and we are relying more and more on Cuban casa particulares (homestays). Cuba is sure to be a unique and memorable holiday and we highly recommend this beautiful island nation. Central America

Extending from northern Guatemala to Panama's Darien Gap, the isthmus of land connecting North and South America is home to extraordinary biodiversity, fascinating Maya heritage, the world's second-largest barrier reef and some of Latin America's most charming colonial cities. The relatively small size of Central America makes it easy to combine two or more countries into a fascinating overland tour.

Panama

Just 80km wide at its narrowest point, Panama is a mountainous and heavily forested country with a surprisingly strong indigenous culture, most evident in the autonomous Kuna regions of the San Blas Islands. Despite the wealth of natural beauty, Panama is mainly famous for the Panama Canal, an engineering marvel and one of the wonders of the modern world. A visit to the Miraflores Lock and Museum is a must. Time your visit to coincide with a partial or full transit for the ultimate experience.

Costa Rica

With lowland jungles, rolling savannahs, volcanic peaks, misty cloud forests, rugged Pacific headland and endless white Caribbean beaches, every region of Costa Rica reveals something unique. Excellent infrastructure and a wide range of accommodation makes it ideal for families and honeymooners.

Watch sea turtles hatching on the Tortuguero coast and explore the island's national park and waterways. The central region of Arenal and Monteverde contains the spectacular active Arenal Volcano and some of the country's most beautiful cloud forest reserves where you can hike along the floor of the forest or enjoy the view from a canopy walkway. Explore the remote Osa Peninsula (November to April) for some of the best wildlife viewing in the country, with sightings of giant anteater, monkeys and tapir common.

Nicaragua

'The Land of Lakes and Volcanoes' combines stunning natural beauty with a rich political and cultural history to make Nicaragua one of the world's most exciting up-and-coming destinations. The colonial cities of Granada and Leon are among Central America's finest, with the crumbling centre of Leon an interesting contrast to the brilliantly resorted historic centre of Granada. The twin volcanic peaks of Ometepe Island rise from the waters of Lake Cocibolca, where visitors can sample the local seafood, explore the island's forests and swim in the refreshing waters of the lake. Visit Nicaragua now, before the rest of the world catches on!

Those seeking sun, sand and crystalline waters can't go past Ambergris Caye, the largest of the Belize Cayes. Belize's Orange Walk District contains much of the country's deep forest, and a visit to one of the fabulous jungle lodges is a great way to discover the area's unique flora and fauna. The Cayo District is Belize's largest, encompassing rainforests on rugged mountain ridges, rolling farmland covered in orchards, gushing rivers and hidden Maya treasures.

Guatemala

Guatemala's Maya heritage is still visible in its people, rituals, myths, religion, language and arts, making it one of the most fascinating cultural destinations in Central America. The Department of Peten, in the country's north, covers almost one-third of Guatemala and is home to rainforests and ancient Maya cities. The most well-known and impressive ruins is Tikal, with soaring temples concealed within the enormous Tikal National Park, a UNESCO World Heritage site.

As well as a rich cultural history, Guatemala is blessed with stunning and diverse landscapes – highland volcanoes, cloud forest, Caribbean coastline, deep jungle and picturesque colonial towns.
